FORMA

IL TERRAZZO

A modern material with centuries of heritage

Terrazzo is one of architecture's most enduring surfaces — a composite of natural marble and stone aggregates set in a cement matrix, then honed and polished to reveal its distinctive fragmented beauty. Born in the workshops of the Venetian region, it remains a material of choice for designers seeking character, longevity and honesty of material.

Each FORMA terrazzo colour begins with carefully selected marble aggregates and pigmented cement, dosed and blended before being compacted under vibration into large monolithic blocks. After curing for a full 28 days, the blocks are sawn into slabs and calibrated tiles — a process that produces a dense, hard-wearing surface with remarkable colour consistency across large floor areas.

WHY CEMENT TERRAZZO

- A broad palette of colours, formats, thicknesses and finishes
- Exceptional colour uniformity across large surfaces
- Highly resistant to wear and abrasion — made for traffic
- A natural, ecological composition of cement and stone
- Non-combustible, with no smoke or toxic release in fire
- Slip-rated finishes available for wet and external areas

FORMA

APPLICATIONS & FORMATS

Designed for the demands of commercial architecture

From airports, stations and shopping centres to schools, hospitals, hotels and residences, terrazzo performs where footfall is relentless and design intent must endure. Its density, abrasion resistance and ease of maintenance make it a natural specification for stairs, lobbies, corridors and large open floor plates — while its crafted, tactile character brings warmth to residential and hospitality interiors.

SU MISURA

Bespoke mixtures, made to your design

Beyond the standard palette, FORMA can develop custom terrazzo mixtures to suit a specific project — matching a base colour, an aggregate blend, a chip scale or an existing historic floor. Bespoke colours are developed to sample, approved by the design team, and produced with the same colour consistency and technical performance as the standard collection.

Colours shown are indicative. Terrazzo is manufactured from natural aggregates; variation in chip distribution is an inherent characteristic of the material. Physical samples available on request.
